

Abstract

International trade is an activity of strategies importance in the development process of a developing economy. Since different countries of the world specialized in producing different goods, international trade serve as the medium through which nations export and import from one another. It is crucial in promoting scientific and cultural integration as well as international peace and economic development. Developing nations more especially African nations as well as Iran can benefit enormously in different areas if they cooperate immensely in the area of trade. The role of foreign trade in achieving a quicker

شهریور 1397
ش	ی	د	س	چ	پ	ج
27	28	29	30	31	1	2
3	4	5	6	7	8	9
10	11	12	13	14	15	16
17	18	19	20	21	22	23
24	25	26	27	28	29	30

Abstract

International trade is an activity of strategies importance in the development process of a developing economy. Since different countries of the world specialized in producing different goods, international trade serve as the medium through which nations export and import from one another. It is crucial in promoting scientific and cultural integration as well as international peace and economic development.

Developing nations more especially African nations as well as Iran can benefit enormously in different areas if they cooperate immensely in the area of trade. The role of foreign trade in achieving a quicker pace of economic development is thus well recognized. Hence, planning of foreign trade cannot be divorced from the strategy of overall development. The disadvantage of international trade is that the welfare of the people in nations that produce goods and services is sometimes ignored for the sake of profits. In conclusion it can be said that, international trade leads to economic growth provided the policy measures and economic infrastructure are accommodative enough to cope with the changes in social and financial scenario that result from it. Therefore, this paper extensively looks at contribution of trade and economy to the expansion of scientific and cultural cooperation. It started by making clarification on what is international trade, the need of international trade, the importance of international trade, positive influence of international trade on economic growth of a country, international trade and economic growth

, economic development and trade, disadvantages of international trade, international trade and development of science and international trade and international cultural exchange. The paper

recommends that in order to fully benefit from international trade, developing nations need to; engage in effective war against corruption, increase their capacity in trade, promote solidarity and collective bargaining, regional integration as well as embark on intensive development of infrastructure.

Keywords: Contribution of trade and economy to the expansion of scientific and cultural cooperation hbj4aia@gmail.com